Dear National University Students,

The coronavirus outbreak has created unprecedented challenges for National University, our state, and the nation. Our first priority is the health and safety of our students, faculty, and staff, and as we continue to respond to this rapidly-evolving situation, we are adjusting operations to further protect the well-being of our NU community.

As of March 18, 2020, National University campuses and facilities will not be physically accessible to students, faculty, staff, and the general public until further notice.

We will continue to provide course instruction, student services, and advising in an online format to support academic continuity and help students stay on track to meet their academic goals.

Thank you for your patience, cooperation, and understanding during this challenging time. Please continue to check NU's coronavirus information page at nu.edu/coronavirus for new updates.
